Job Description

An exciting opportunity to provide collaborative leadership in developing, guiding, and contributing to ongoing implementation of learning assessment and program improvement for our undergraduate medical education program is available at the Jacobs School of Medicine and Biomedical Sciences. The Medical Education and Educational Research Institute\(MEERI\) encompasses services and programs that shape, support, and enhance teaching and learning at the Jacobs School. To support these efforts along with our evolving medical student curriculum, the Jacobs School seeks to hire a Director of Assessment. In this role, you will ensure that all assessments utilized for student development (formative) or student assessment (summative, for grade) meet or exceed the highest standards specified by the university, the National Board of Medical Examiners, the American Educational Research Association, and the American Psychological Association.

You will also incorporate tracking of possible inequity present in assessment methods/outcomes in order to develop an assessment program that ensures equitable evaluation of performance for all medical students in order to be successful in this role. In this position, you will:

- Serve as an assessment specialist by coaching faculty, staff, and learners on appropriate implementation and use of assessment tools and resources.
- Lead the curriculum team in assessment instrument development including exam blueprints, standard setting, observation protocols, scoring rubrics, questionnaires, surveys, etc.
- Collaboratively develop, review and refine formative and summative assessments with faculty including longitudinal assessments, OSCEs, and workplace-based assessments that align with desired student outcomes.
- Work with the Office of Accreditation and Quality Improvement (OAQI) and the Office of Medical Computing to design and maintain databases with assessment data, analyze assessments as part of a continuous quality improvement process, and provide specific feedback to faculty regarding their assessments.
- Use performance metrics and analytics to ensure that evidence supports assessment methodologies employed.
- Collaborate with the faculty and staff of the Offices of Medical Education in research projects focusing on the education of our students.

Salary:$90,000 - $110,000
