Job Description

The newly established Office of Biomedical Research (OBR) supports the ambitious research agenda at the Jacobs School of Medicine and Biomedical Sciences (Jacobs School). The Director of Research Planning (DRP) plays a pivotal role in advancing this mission by working closely with the Senior Associate Dean for Research (SAD-R) to develop and implement policies, procedures, and strategic initiatives that enhance research activities across Jacobs School.

The DRP will provide critical leadership in operations, financial management, and strategic planning. Key responsibilities include:

- managing faculty requests
- coordinating internal funding programs

- overseeing research performance reporting
- facilitating communications that highlight Jacobs School research achievements

The DRP will also lead the development of tools and resources, such as the OBR website and faculty database, to streamline access to information and opportunities.

This role requires handling sensitive matters, including personnel and budgetary issues, with discretion and sound judgment. Reporting directly to the SAD-R, the DRP will engage in daily interactions and weekly meetings to ensure alignment on strategic priorities and projects. As a leadership position, the DRP will focus on strategic planning, financial management, and operational oversight to advance Jacobs School's research mission. Administrative support for clerical and secretarial tasks will be provided by an OBR-dedicated administrative assistant, enabling the DRP to concentrate on high-level decision-making, project management, and the execution of strategic initiatives.
