Job Description

The Assistant Director for Cultural Well-being and Collaboration at Old Dominion University plays a key role in advancing campus interculturalization by prioritizing the cultural well-being and sense of belonging of all students through collaborative cultural engagement. This position leads initiatives aimed at enhancing students' academic, personal, and social success by promoting cultural socialization, supporting well-being, and fostering cross-campus collaboration. The Assistant Director partners with faculty, departments, student organizations, and external community partners to develop impactful programs that support a vibrant campus community. By focusing on cultural well-being, leadership, and collaboration, this role greatly enriches students' experiences, academic journeys, and sense of belonging at ODU.
